Such an attack might be allowed to pass by without other comment than a smile if times were ordinary, but it has come at the moment of Ireland's agony. Nay, this is not putting it strongly enough. It is no exaggeration to say that out of the battle which Ireland is now waging she will issue either a political corps there was a time when a blow was cruel, ous and wanton it is at this moment. TRADE RELATIONS WITH GREAT BRITAIN. OTTAWA, Ontario, May 1 .- In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon Mr. Marshall introduced a resolution regarding the establishment of mutually favorable trade relations between Great Britain and her colonies. He said he was not a member of the Imperial Federation League, nor had his resolution anything to do with the League, but he considered that it was for Canada's interest that she should ally herself intimately with the mother country and her colonies in trade matters.

He said he was not animated by hostility to the United States, but he remembered that the United States, but he remembered that the United States Government, in any action it took, never regarded the interests of Canada. If the United States took offense at the Dominion in the event of her adopting the policy he advocated that should be no reason for Canada holding back from doing what was for her manifest benefit. Canada's natural market was Great Britain and he did not despair that before long the fair trade agitation would have reached such strength that the British Government would meet any overtures from Canada in the way he proposed.

The CANADIAN FACIFIC.

The report of the Minister of Raliways which led to the agreement with the Canadian Pacific in reference to surrender of its monopoly privileges was brought down yesterday. The reason urged as a justification for the Government ceasing to disallow Manisoba raliway charters, is that the Canadian-Pacific could not handle the traffic of the Northwest. It is still heped, however, to do so by placing a line in the very best position to prevene traffic being diverted through the United States.

THE ASSISTANT CASHIER OF THE NATIONAL PARK BANK A DEFAULTER.

counts Robs the Bank of $05,000 Efforts of the Bank to Keep the Matter Quiet-

NEW YORK, May 1.—The Times to-day pub-shes the following: While the body of the enerable George H. Potts lay in its coffin yes which he was the President, for the first time in the history of that institution. Later instigation show the rumors to be correct. An dal whose twenty years' of service in the bank had led to implicit confidence in his honesty had taken from its funds nearly $100,-000 by an ingenious system of falsifying porter called at the bank, but the officia there would make no statement for publicaion. It was not until later that the story of a was confirmed. That it was known outside the bank was a surprise to one of the oldest directors, who was seen last night by a eporter. The trouble in the bank, he said, was a great surprise to the directors. The course was a mere pinch of snuff to the ational Park Bank, whose accruing surplus of the year would much more than cover it The stealing from the bank had been by an ingenious method of treating the accounts. "There are only two ways of stealing abank's funds," said the director. "One is to commit a boldface robbery and fly the country, and the other is by a gradual method of tion at length." NO SECRECY. The director did not believe in covering matters up and said that if a bank official matters up and said that if a bank official committed wrong he should be punished for it. The man in question has been a frequenter at his club and lived in excellent style. He had been with the bank for twenty years and was one of its most trustworthy officials. That the defalcation should have been discovered before was admitted notwithstanding the ingenuity of the offender. The director did not care to say anything in regard to the defaulter's history or method of life. The whole matter was one of sorrow to those connected with the bank, more because he had been honest for so many years than from the loss to the institution. It was hard for them to believe. An investigation into the matter. o believe. An investigation into the matte swindling in some ingenious way of fixing accounts or manipulating the funds and pooks. This small affair was effected in nost ingenious way. It would take some tim to tell you, and probably at first you would not understand it. It would require explana-will be made by the directors to-day at the meeting.

The Cashier's refusal to say anything upon the subject led to inquiry which disclosed that Charles I. Debaun, Assistant Cashier of the bank, had been absent during the day and that there was no certainty in regard to his coming back. He had discharged the duties usually devolving upon the Cashier during several months of Mr. Potts' illness when Cashier Wright acted as President. No one charged anything against him or intimated that he might not have gone away on perfectly legitimate business. The fact that his absence had been noted was communicated by fectly legitimate business. The fact that his absence had been noted was communicated by the reporter to Cashier Wright, but that official could not lay down the barriers of his silence to defend his assistant against imputation. Nor would the bank's counsel defend any name except that of Mr. Potts. Visitors to various directors during the afterimputation. Nor would the bank's counsel defend any name except that of Mr. Potts. Visitors to various directors during the afternoon showed that they had agreed upon a policy of silence.

Mr. Debaun was not at home last evening when a reporter called. An inquiry for Mrs. Debaun was answered by a tail, handsome lady, who announced herself as the wife of Mr. Debaun, former Assistant Cashier of the National Park Bank. Her husband had resigned, ane said, on account of ill health and to go into other business. He had accepted it because it was an advantageous mercantile offer. Whether it came from this city, Brooklyn or elsewhere she would not say. She declined to state when he tendered his resignation at the bank and did not know when it took effect. Regarding the rumor that her husband's accounts were not as they should be Mrs. Debaun said that was his business and she did not pretend to know about his private affairs. Debaun was in the city, she said, and had been home during the day and she expected him during the night.

WHERE IS DERAUN'

Geo. S. Hart, President of the Second Avenue Rairoad Co. and one of the directors of the bank, seemed surprised when the reporter mentioned his business and asked if the announcement could not be kept back until after the funeral of Mr. Potts, the President of the bank, to-morrow.

"Do you know where Mr. Debaun is?" was asked.

"Idon't."

"I don't."
"Is he in Canada?"
"He is not as far as that. Go to Mr. Wright, the Cashier; he will tell you all about it."
"Do you know what the amount of his defalcation is? Is it $250,000?"
"Oh, no, not so much as that. Go to Mr. Wright; he will tell you all about it. Mr. Debaum only had charge of the correspondence. He had nothing to do with the funds. We are going to have a meeting to-morrow at 10 o'clock."
Business kept on as usual st the bank yesterday, and depositors stood in a long line with money to pass in when the hour for closing arrived. Rumor had hardly spread fast enough to reach timid depositors, and those who were cool-headed had only to think of the bank's financial condition to banish doubt in regard to its ability to weather a loss of $100,000, or several times that amount, if there was defalcation of that or a greater sum.

or slow, our several times that amount, if there was defalcation of that or a greater sum.

DE BAUN'S BIG STEAL.

The officers of the National Park Bank are very resident in regard to the defalcation of Assistant Cashier Charles I. De Baun, who has disappeared. A meeting of the directors was held to day. Before it went into session Cashier Wright promised to give the reporters a statement, but when it adjourned he declined to do so. All he would say was that the amount of the defalcation is $95,000, that De Baun entered the bank in a minor position twenty-two years ago and gradually worked up to the position of assistant cashier. He would probably have been a cashier in a short time, added Mr. Wright, had he gone straight. De Baur resigned his position on April 19, assigning ill health as the cause. His resignatirn was voluntary. He was under personal bonds, which are said to be satisfactory to the bank. By resolution the defalcation was charged to the profit and loss account. The defalcation will not embarrass the bank. How it was accomplished has not been made known by the officers. De Baun and charge of the out of town correspondence with other banks. In this way he received checks which he appropriated, it is said, covering his steals by false entries. The defalcation was not discovered until De Baun's books were examined after he had resigned and disappeared.

In the Ninth District the returns will be made to Secretary Chas. Schweickhardt at Central Turner Hall and in the Tenth District to G. W. Hequembourg at Concordia Turner Hall.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Seventeent Ward Democratic Club was held at its hall. There were quite a number of applications presented for membership in the club, all of which were referred to the Executive Committee. It was decided to forward by mail to every voter of the ward a circular which will set forth the aim, object and principles of the club. By this means the membership will be greatly strengthened.

An interesting feature of the meetings of the club, which will soon be inaugurated, will be the inviting of prominent and representative men of the party to be present at the meetings for the purpose of presenting their views on the issues of the times. Several of the party's representative men who are not candidates for political honors have signified their willingness to be present whenever called upon.

The contract for decorating the hall will not be awarded until the 5th inst. until which date bids will be received by Chairman Rainwater's committee from artists and decorators.

Stuffed the Boxes.

The experts of the Hendricks Association are so out of practice that last evening when they undertook a little job of ballot-box stufing they were detected by an outsider on the first return. The effort was a bungling one. Ex-Sheriff John Finn became disgusted, resigned his tellership and left the hall. After the nominations were made last evening for the officers of the Marching Corps it was decided to drop all names but the four receiving the highest number of votes. The informal balloting and the stuffing began and on the first announcement one of the occasional visitors described as a "rank outsider" charged that the box had been stuffed. While fity-nine votes had been cast there were only thirty-eight voters present. Ex-Sheriff Finn, who had been appointed a teller, withdrew from the meeting in which he refused to participate further. The chair then appointed a committee to examine the ballots before they were cast. Some wag suggested that Recorder Williams be sent for, but the ghastly joke was received in apprehensive silence. The count showed that there were only thirty-eight numbers present. The election resulted in the following members receiving the highest number of votes for the places: John A. Sloan, Captain; John F. Walton, First Lieutenant; Hehael J. Lynch, Second Lieutenant; Frank J. Dacy, Orderly Sergeant; W. H. Martin, Second Lieutenant; J. On D. Tyler, Fourth Lieutenant; Peter J. Nolan, Fifth Lieutenant; Wm. McClelland, Sixth Lieutenant, J. R. Swarts, Seventh Lieutenant.

The names of E. Coyle, Florence McAuliffe, E. W. Moon, Malcolm McDonald, Charles J. Daly, Nicholas J. Davis, Lawrence O. Wilson, Emmett McDonald and Jas. J. Brophy were proposed for membersnip.

Higginsville, Mo., May 1.—The campaign of the State on behalf of the Democracy is be ing opened here this afternoon, and among the oracors of the occasion are John M.Glover, A. P. Morehonse and Bob Claiborne. The affair was got up mainly in the interest of Dave Francis to whom a most pressing invitation was tendered to be present, and not only is he absent, but no word has been received from him. He was notified that among the matters to be discussed would be his turning over of the city of St. Louis as its Mayor to the Republicans, but he is not here to face the music. Capt. Southard of St. Louis is here. In speaking of Francis he said: "Francis will prove to be to the Democracy of Missouri what Burchard was to Blaine. Francis as Mayor of St. Louis has done nothing which he promised to do, and everything which he said he would not do."

Col. Claiborne and Gov. Morehouse were warmly greeted, but the notable event is the reception being tendered the "little" Congressman at the Arcade Hotel, where the parlors are thronged with a steady stream of admirers and prominent citizens anxious to meet him. Two bands this morning serenaded Mr. Glover. Three weeks ago this county was for Francis. to-day it belows to Glover. ng opened here this afternoon, and among surroundings which call for a new movement in the election of delegates. At first each candidate presented his credentials in person, and in ordinary his credentials in person, and in ordinary cases this simple method of proceedure was satisfactory, but as the movement spread and the number of delegates increased greater supervision and care became necessary, especially when information is received from reliable sources that a number of those presenting themselves as delegates are known to be incelligible. The list of candidates this year is a large one and contains many names whose eligibility is not yet satisfactorily established, and a number of protests have been lodged in our hands to be deait with by the conference when the question of the election of the candidates is in order. Our general rules provide that the names of the parties challenged shall not be called until a quorum of unchallenged delegates shall be found to be present. The conference will then act as is just and lawful. We are aware that we stand in the presence of several important, questions requiring our decision and we urge upon you the necessity of patience and earnest prayers for our guidance in determining what course shall be most just and most likely to further the interests of our church."

At the close of Bishop Bowman's remarks Rev. Dr. T. B. Neeley of Philadelphia gave notice that he had a statement to make, when the question of the election of candidates for delegates came before the conference.

said as much when the possibility of abandoning the illumination was suggested to him.

"That must never be," he exclaimed carnestly. "The street illumination has come to be a permanent institution in St. Louis for the admiration of visiting thousands. We are proud of it and will never allow it to lapse. Rather than risk such a possibility I would gladly double my subscription, and I think you will find many others who regard the subject in the same way."

Mr. J. L. Boogher of the same firm expressed himself in a like manner. "What, abandon the illumination?" he said. "That would be ridiculous and a misfortune that must never come to pass. I think any report to the contrary must be a mistake."

of the Famous Shee & Clothing Co. was equally enthusiastic. "To abandon the illumination of the streets," he said, "would be like taking a step backward, yes, two or three steps, and that we certainly cannot afford to do. Why, it is one of the greatest things in the world, and if only for the sake of our reputation we must confinue it. How people in Chicago and elsewhere would laugh and jeer did they suspect that we might be guilty of such a thing. The clitzens of St. Louis have grown accustomed to the illumination and many of them do not really appreciate, I suppose, what a magnificent thing it is, but outliders view the spectacle in its true proportions, and were the display discontinued the falling off in enthusiasm among the visitors would be readily perceived. CITY COUNSELOR BELL PASSES UPON SOME LEGAL POINTS FOR THE BOARD.

McMath and Klemm Have Kept Within Says It Is Setting a Dangerous Preceden

Account the morning. There was counted to the commence of ghiting on the corner of deference awarms and Olive street. They had such a street in the contract of the contract o tractor, extended the time for completing the engine to August 1, 1888. The extension was in part based on the delay of the city in providing the temporary building mentioned in the contract. The contract as above stated provides that if any delay is occasioned by the city the, contractor shall not have any damages he may suffer, but shall be entitled to an extension of time sufficient to compensate him for the detention, the same to be determined by the city of the contractor for a delay occasioned by the city is submitted to the judgment and decision of the Board of Public Improvements. The board is given jurisdiction to determine the question. In the present case there was a delay occasioned by the city which was the basis of an application by the contractor for an extension of time. The board considered the matter and granted the extension. It had power to do this under the terms of the contract, and my opinion is that the action of the board in the present case was lawful and valid. Your obedients servesnt.

LEVEREIT BELL, City Counselor.

The ground taken by President Flad is that this action is an injustice to the other parties who bid on the contract and calculated on completing the work in the time specified in the contract. Another argument against the action of the board is that it establishes a precedent, which may be used to defend corrupt favoritism shown by future boards. The detailed specifications no longer mean a great deal, or mean nothing, as they may be set aside or insisted on at the pleasure of a combine of any four members of the board. As the bills must be approved and the contract deposits released with the approbation of the President of the board, it is not at all improbable the matter will go before the courts.

Only on one occasion in that period had he met with any thing that could be called positive discourtesy, and even in this case there was an excuse, inasmuch as the offense hud been committed, not out of incivility, but by a politician in the way of business. At this the students pricked up their ears and whispered "Depew" and then a sharp voiley of applause followed.

Prof. Smith smiled with the boys as though it were an excellent joke, and went on to say that he hoped it might not be believed from anything that appeared in the newspapers that he had spoken of Americans as hostile to individual Englishmen. He had never done this, nor was it possible that he should do it. He had only spoken of the anti-British feeling which was drawn forth by international difficulties to which it was idle to deny that politicians frequently appealed, and which had a repelling and strangling effect on the British immigrant.

The Chief Justice of the United States hould be accordingly the most eminent judge in the United States. He should be the greatest lawyer, the leading jurist. His qualifications for the office should include not only the highest and purest personal character, but legal and judicial training, and a public record recognized and endorsed by the public approval.

Now it is doing no injustice to Mr. Ful-LER to say that his appointment does not meet these requirements. It does not give us what we have a right to expect. His private character is doubtless beyond criticism. The testimony of those who know him is unanimous that he is an able lawyer and a good citizen. But this is not enough. He has had no judicial experience whatever. It does not appear that he has ever tried a case in his life. He has made no really great name in the law. He is identified with no great or leading principle, with no illustrious triumph of justice, with no forensic contest which established any legal landmark or marked any progress, and his record in politics is not that which trains Chief Justices. By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch. NEW YORK, May 1 .- The Tribune to-day says: "The first feeling of the country will no doubt be one of disappointment that the new Chief Justice seems to be under the historic size. Under the circumstances he cannot hope to come to the great place thus suddenly conferred upon him with the ready and pleased acquiesence of the country as might have been the case with a man who had been long in the public eye. But if he has the learning and the abilities demanded by the post they will soon win recognition, and none will be more quick to give it than the political opponents of the administration who selected him.'

of the administration who selected him."

The Herald says: "Mr. Fuller comes to us solely on the President's recommendation, and while we may regret that the long service of some of the venerable and illustrious jurists who now adorn the bench was not recognized, we are persuaded from what we read that Mr. Cleveland, in his new discovery, has shown the same good sense and will win the same good fortune which have attended most of his expariments in executive selection."

The Times says: "The appointment of Mr. Fuller ought to be confirmed without any of that unseemly delay or carping criticism which has made the conduct of the Senate ungracious in case of so many appointments against which no valid objection could be urged."

a bicyclist leisurely riding along.

The bicyclist dug his feet into the pedals and tried to escape, but before he could get up his spurt his handle bars were seized.

Jumping off, the rider began to throw off his coat belligerently. "Oh, you needn't come that," said the other. "This is my wheel,

The discoverer of "his own" was Knight Wade, whose 48-inch wheel had been stolen from in front of the Y. M. C. A. three weeks ago. For days Wade had scanned every wheel that had rolled by in hopes of seeing his familiar 48. But it looked as if his wheel was gone forever until one night last up his station and watched for his return with the result of making the warlike scene just described.

The rider agreed to go to the residence of Prof. C. H. Stone, the wheeling Nestor of the city. There he said he had bought the wheel for $15, having paid $5 down. He agreed to turn the wheel over if the $5 were refunded. The wheel is worth nearly one hundred dollars, but it was determined to catch the thief and the offer was rejected, and he was threataned with arrest. He consented to reveal the seller, and, going to the mounted district, a policeman in citizen's clothes was sent out by Capt. Fruchte to aid in the search, After two hours hunt in the region about the car tracks and Chouteau avenue Aftred Joins was identified by the apprehended rider as the one who had sold the wheel. He was taken to the station, where he told a story that he had bought it from a boy. As Joins is 6 feet tall and would ride a 55 or 60-inch, his purchase of a 48 looked fishy. A warrant was sworn out against him yesterday as stated in the Post-Distarch.

This is the first capture for alleged bicycle thieving in this city and the wheelmen's attention is called to it by the growing danger. Several other whoels have been stolen the past few weeks. It is proposed by Mr. Wade to push this case, in which determination he will be backed by the thousand riders of the city. In the East bicycle stealing grew exasperatingly frequent a few years ago until several thieves were "sent up" for long terms.

Chicago Kicks Against the High Price of Admission.

The howl that has gone up in association is being echoed in league cities. Even the old league is not considered good enough to warrant the 50-cent tax that has been its feature for so many years. The Chicago Times of Sunday talks thus plainly to President Spalding under the caption of "Down With Ball Prices:"

Come, Spaiding. This White Stocking team of yours is all right. A great many people like to see them play ball, but times are hard, taxes are high, and prices have a downward tendency. You charge too much gate money. You commenced at the bat, and continue to be a hard matter of business. The man who keeps a private insane asylum is prompted less by numane considerations than by the desire for gain, and you are in the ball line for the purpose of making the last penny possible out of as poor ball cranks. The craze is on us. If you commenced states that "if you don't want to see my show you rake cold-blooded advantage, for merely mercenary ends, of the infatuation of your victims. Joseph Rogers has received a letter from Ned Hanlan, dated March 21, only a month ago. Ned writes in the best of spirits. He ago. Ned writes in the best of spirits. He says that he is training for his two big races, £500 a side, with Peter Kemp and Edward Trickett. He is just about confident of winnin both. Kemp is rowing terribly hard and strong, and Beach is giving him all the aid in his power, but Trickett is fat and has not rowed a race since he competed against Beach in 1884. He (Hanlam) has been taking the best care of himself, and the manner of his writing shows that, for it is notorious that a man in hard training cannot write a good fist. His strokes are sturdy and strong, but show effort and lack of practice in the caligraphic art. Beach keeps himself at work in his boat with a view of teaching Kemp speed and stubbornness, such as he himself so largely possesses. Hanlan regrets that O'Connor did not make the trip across the Pacific to the Southern Hemisphere, as he thinks he might have got on races with Nellsen, Clifford and uitimately Kemp. He regrets that the Toronto senior four is not going to England, and thinks if he were with them there he could have landed them first at the post. Betting between him and Kemp, he imagines, will be about even, with lots of money behind each man. Hanlan does not forget his friends, and desires to be remembered to all.

Toof. The suit was brought upon an attachagain be induced to meet him. O'Leary has tried to get in fights with Weir, Warren and the other cracks of his class, but none of them have displayed any willineness to fight him. He was arrested in Dayton, O., some time ago on a charge of stealing a diamond pin. O'Leary then realized how friendless he was, as he could get no one to go on his bond. After remaining in jail some time one day a short time ago he walked quietly out of the jail while the guard was talking to a friend, his back being turned toward O'Leary and the door being open. The privileges of the place had been given the fighter and he availed himself of them in that manner. He came to St. Louis where he was arrested. Sheriff Snyder says O'Leary undoubtedly committed the larcency but did it while drunk and that if he had not escaped from jail would have been let off without any punishment. If caught again, as he undoubtedly will be. things are apt to go hard with him. The officers here think that he is just as apt to return here as to go anywhere else.

decree of divorce in the case of Charlotte Krause against Jacob Krause. The Court says: "I do not think that a divorce should be granted in this case. The busband was no doubt much to blame in speaking harshly and disrespectfully of his wife's parents in her presence. Consideration for her feelings if nothing else should have prevented him from so acting. On the other hand she should not have persisted in urging the views and advice of her parents on her husband when she noticed that it was distasteful to him. Neither of them should have allowed so small a matter as the hiring or retaining of a clerk to cause any feeling or trouble between them.

ment bond executed by the defendants to the state in an attachment suit brought by one of the defendants against the plaintiff in the suit at bar. The breach of the bond alleged was the failure of the defendant suing out the attachment to prosecute the suit with effect and without delay. The evidence tended to show that after the attachment suit was brought the defendant, out of an assigned claim, collected an amount equal to his debt, and that by agreement with the plaintiff in the suit at bar applied the amount collected to the extinguishment of the claim which was the basis of the attachment sued on.

The court instructed the jury that if they believed the above facts, and that the defendant upon satisfying his claim mentioned then dismissed his attachment suit, the plaintiff could not recover. The jury having found that the fund collected in Tennessee was applied by agreement of the parties to the extinguishment of the claim sued on it followed that the plaintiff put the defendant in a position where he could not further prosecute the suit and onght not to be heard to complain because he did not further prosecute it.
